Each block consisted of 3 levels of accommodation with common use areas. ADG were engaged for Structural, Civil and Hydraulic engineering services.

To compete with overseas modular unit manufacturers ADG carried out extensive R&D including full scale testing to devise an innovative structural module design.

The remote project location in regional Western Australia required the use of modular construction methods to remain economically viable. To compete with overseas modular unit manufacturers ADG carried out extensive R&D including full scale testing to devise an innovative structural module design.

This was Hutchinson Builders flagship project in WA. Despite many challenges and site constraints, ADG delivered an efficient design demonstrative of the team's innovative thinking.
